

The Family Digital Reset Guide”

Supporting Episode # 5: When Likes Rule the Mind – How Digital Distraction Rewires Teen Focus

Goal: Help parents reset their teen’s digital patterns and co-create mindful tech habits that last.

1. Reflect

Quick Check-In:

- How many hours does your teen spend on screens outside of study time?
- How many of those hours are intentional vs. mindless scrolls?
- How often do you reach for your phone while talking to your teen?

“What we model, we magnify.” — Coach Irene

Write 3 small digital habits you’d like to model better at home.

2. Reset

The 5-Step Family Digital Detox Framework

1. Define Non-Negotiables:

- No screens at dining tables.
- 30 min tech-free time before bed.

2. Create Tech Zones:

- Common charging spot; no personal devices in bedrooms.

3. Introduce 'Digital Sabbaths/digital fast days':

- Choose one or two half-day a week for outdoor, creative, or family time.
- Tuck that phone away for most part of that family time.

4. Use a Visible Reminder:

- A family "focus jar" — each day they follow the boundary, add a token for a family treat/gift.

5. Reflect Weekly:

- What worked? What didn't? What felt lighter this week?

3. Reconnect

- Start one offline ritual together (e.g., evening walks, puzzle night, music jam).
- Share stories of your own phone struggles with your teen let them see your humanness.
- End the week by sharing one joy you both noticed when screens were off.

4. Reinforce

Mini Self-Test (For the Family)

- We talk about tech use openly, not defensively.
- We have shared screen boundaries that apply to both parent and teen.
- We track “screen-free wins” together, not just punish slip-ups.

If you got 2 or more, your family is moving toward mindful digital living.

Section 5

“A child’s digital discipline begins not with control, but with calm. Be the calm.”
